FAMOUS SCULPTOR REACHES CAPITAL

Sir Moses Ezekiel to See His Confederate Memorial Unveiled.

HAS ACHIEVED FAME IN THE OLD WORLD.

Although an American, He Has Been Knighted in Italy—Other Honors Accorded.

Sir Moses Ezekiel, soldier of the south during the civil war while a cadet at the Virginia Military Institute, sculptor of the Confederate memorial to be unveiled in Arlington national cemetery tomorrow, who has won world fame as an artist and sculptor, been knighted by Queen Margherita of Italy and honored by several other old world rulers, reached Washington this morning.

Although Sir Moses was knighted by the Queen of Italy and received the title of officer of the crown of Italy, he is an American, and feels a pride in the progress of his native land. Like a true Virginian, Sir Moses is loyal to his mother state. He was born at Richmond, Va., October 28, 1854. One of his most important works is his "Christ in the Tomb." The Peabody Institute has a fine example of his work, the "Head of Christ," and one of the parks of Philadelphia has his colossal bust of Gov. Curtin.

Will Go to Lynchburg.

After the unveiling of the Confederate monument Sir Moses will go to Lynchburg, Va., to make arrangements for the erection of a statue of the late Senator John W. Daniel, which he finished recently in his studio in Rome and shipped to Lynchburg.

Looking fifteen to twenty years younger than his seventy years, he is active and does not wear glasses, except, he says, "when I have to read fine print. Ordinarily I can see much better without glasses."

He was a guest at luncheon today of Col. and Mrs. J. F. Reynolds Landis at their home, 1412 21st street northwest. Col. Landis was formerly military attaché at Rome, where he and Mrs. Landis became great friends with Sir Moses.

Sir Moses will be the dinner guest for tonight at the Brighton of Prof. R. A. Rice of the Library of Congress.

What the Confederate memorial means, as told briefly by the sculptor himself, follows:

"The intention is that it is a peace monument. Without forgetting the sacrifices and the heroism of the south and emphasizing the fact that we were fighting for a constitutional right and not to uphold slavery, I have attempted to have the dominant idea the future and not the past, that the intention of the south is to rest the future on her industry and her agriculture and let the past go, but not be forgotten."

"With this idea, the large figure at the top represents the south, one hand holding a wreath for the past, but with the right hand resting on the handles of a plow. The smaller figures below represent the sacrifices, the devotion, the heroism of all classes of the south in upholding and fighting for what they passionately believed to be the right. On the base of the monument are the words: 'They shall not pass.'"

Never Met President.

Sir Moses has never met President Wilson, and is looking forward with pleasure to seeing him. He knows former President Roosevelt well, and likes him. Of President he said:

"I heard of Woodrow Wilson some three and a half years ago from President Alderman of the University of Virginia. Had gone there when my statue of Thomas Jefferson was unveiled, and was the guest of President Alderman. He spoke of Woodrow Wilson in the highest terms and said he believed Wilson would be the next President of the United States. From Dr. Alderman's description of him I thought he would be an excellent man for President, so when I got back to Rome and was asked by my friends, Ambassador and Mrs. O'Brien, about American politics, I remarked that Woodrow Wilson would probably be the next President. They were amazed how I got such an idea and said that they could think of nothing more probable, and could not imagine how I had gotten such an idea."

"Oh," said I, "my opinion is based not on my own knowledge, but on what was told me by a man in whom I have great confidence." I think at that time Mr. Wilson had not yet been elected as Governor of New Jersey.

Another Prophecy True.

"Another prophecy—and this was my own—came true in a rather curious way. Ambassador and Mrs. O'Brien and I were discussing one day just after the election of Wilson who would be the next ambassador to Italy. I suggested that I thought it would be Thomas Nelson Page, the wish being father to the thought, as I had known and loved Page for many years and had often been his guest, with out having much idea that so desirable a consummation would ensue. You may imagine my delight when I heard that my old friend was really coming to Italy. It makes it very delightful for me to have the pages there, as you may suppose."

At seventeen Moses Ezekiel went to the Virginia Military Institute, Lexington. From there, in 1864, he marched with the 22d cadets the 60 miles to "Newmarket," where, while by side with seasoned veterans—these boys planted their company's victorious flag upon the caisson of splendor. Federal forces. All the experiences of active service, victory, defeat, feasting upon the full garner of the enemy and fasting on their own empty one, made impressions upon the youthful patriot that future years were to bring forth in deathless bronze and marble.

Above the Speaker's desk in the national House is his head of Jefferson; in the navy yard there is his Farragut; in the niches on the floor of the Corcoran Art Galleries are his colossal statues of great artists.

In front of the rotunda of the University of Virginia is his Jefferson—spirited, refined, exalted in expression—Jefferson in his young manhood, for he was only 26 when he wrote the Declaration of Independence.

His Mrs. Fiske and his recumbent statue Mrs. Andrew D. White are at Cornell University. So, in many places in America, in homes, parks, galleries and institutions, his work is found and honored.

Around it is even more widely known and is found in every country in Europe.

Decorated by Bulers.

The Emperor of Germany and the Grand Duke of Saxe-Meiningen have conferred upon him the cavalier crosses, and the Queen of Italy the cross of an officer of the crown. He has been honored and feted in all possible ways in appreciation and admiration of his work.

In Paris his "Christ Entombed" reposes in the chapel built as a memorial to the victims of the frightful basar fire which staggered humanity some years ago. One stands in awe and silence before this figure of majestic serenity—the power of final triumph is upon the beautiful face, and your heart is filled with the love that is past understanding. Sir Moses always puts the finishing touches himself upon the marble, and he devoted three years of patient labor to this one.

His Napoleon has been called the "History of Napoleon," so comprehensive is it and it is now in Los Angeles, Cal.

Sir Moses visited Baltimore yesterday to consult with those who are in charge of the erection of a statue to Edgar Allan Poe which the sculptor is designing.

CONFEDERATE MONUMENT TO BE UNVEILED AT ARLINGTON TOMORROW—THE SCULPTOR.

INSET: SIR MOSES EZEKIEL.

WARRIORS TO UNITE IN LAUDING HEROES

sent as his tribute to the ex-Confederate dead a bountiful supply of beautiful flowers from the White House.

After the Confederate section had been completed, with a mound in the center for a monument, the monument, like "Top," "just groined." Before it had been officially authorized, the R. E. Lee Chapter of the U. D. C. in Washington raised $1,000 for it. In March, 1906, Mrs. Magnus Thompson, permission to erect the monument, and soon the Stone-wall Chapter of the U. D. C. had raised $1,000.

November 6, 1906, Mrs. Thompson made a call on all Confederate organizations in Washington, and delegates from Camp 171, U. C. V., a camp of Sons of Veterans and five chapters of U. D. C. convened and formed the Arlington Confederate Monument Association, with an executive committee, the personnel of which now is as follows:

Col. Hilary A. Herbert, chairman; Mrs. Marion Butler, vice chairman; president, Mrs. Daisy McLaurin Stevens, recording secretary, Mrs. Drury Conway Ludlow; corresponding secretary, Mrs. William Oscar Roomie; treasurer, Wallace Streeter.

Executive committee—Justice Seth Shepard, Col. Hilary A. Herbert, Capt. John M. Hickey, Wallace Streeter, Abner H. Ferguson, Mrs. Magnus S. Thompson, Mrs. Rust Smith, Mrs. Drury Conway Ludlow, Mrs. James E. Mulcare, Mrs. Marion Butler, Mrs. Archibald Young, Mrs. William Oscar Roomie, Mrs. Blanche Claggett West, Miss Mary R. Advisory board—Capt. John T. Callaghan, Senator Francis M. Cockrell, Joseph J. Darlington, Senator Charles J. Padon, Dr. Randolph H. McKim, Thomas M. Owen, Dr. Thomas Nelson Page, Judge Seth Shepard and Gen. Marcus J. Wright.

Members: Alabama, Mrs. Clifford A. Lanier; Arizona, Miss Salome Townsend; Arkansas, Mrs. Clementine Boles; California, Mrs. Beattie Topp; Colorado, Mrs. J. A. Lovell; Florida, Mrs. John W. Tench; Georgia, Mrs. James A. Rounsaville; Illinois, Mrs. John Willis Beardsley; Indiana, Mrs. James T. Cabiness; Kentucky, Miss Cady M. Provan; Louisiana, Mrs. Doris G. Gautreaux; Maryland, Mrs. Frank G. Odell; Massachusetts, Mrs. R. Starnford; Minnesota, Mrs. Helen G. Nebraska, Mrs. Elijah Conklin; New Mexico, Mrs. Jo Cato; New York, Mrs. Charles E. Goldborough; North Carolina, Mrs. I. W. Faison; Ohio, Mrs. Mary E. Wiltberger; Oklahoma, Mrs. Ruth Clement; Oregon, Mrs. Nannie Duff; Pennsylvania, Mrs. T. Ashby Blythe; South Carolina, Mrs. Thomas W. Kett; Tennessee, Mrs. J. W. Clapp; Utah, Mrs. Ada Atkins Schoelling; Virginia, Mrs. Thomas S. Boccock; Washington, Mrs. Marie B. Sayre; West Virginia, Mrs. Ben Davis.

Permission to Erect Monument.

William H. Taft, March 8, 1906, as Secretary of War, in charge officially of the National cemetery, gave to the U. D. C. a letter to John Sharp Williams, who had written at the instance of Mrs. Thompson, permission to erect the monument, inscriptions subject to approval by the Secretary of War; and the inscriptions actually on the monument as erected have been approved by Lindley M. Garrison, present Secretary of War.

In 1907 the committee had raised quite a sum, but the magnitude of the work it had undertaken, and its significance, grew upon it. The bodies represented nearly, if not quite, every state of the Confederacy; the monument was to be in the National cemetery at Arlington, a memorial to the rank and file of the white Confederate army. Request was therefore made that the task be taken over by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, an organization with chapters all over the south and in many northern states.

At their annual convention in 1907 the United Daughters of the Confederacy took over the work, organized an Arlington Confederate Monument Association of their own, and continued the existing executive committee at Washington. Later a committee on design was formed.

In November, 1910, the following members of the committee on design convened at Washington: Mrs. Cornelia Branch Stone, chairman; Mrs. R. H. McKim, Mrs. Marion Butler, Hilary A. Herbert and Wallace Streeter.

Sir Moses Ezekiel, the great Virginia sculptor, whose studio is in Rome, Italy, and who was then in Richmond, was called before the committee. The artist had never sought the committee, but when called before it he had a design already in mind. This he outlined as a heroic-sized figure, typifying the south; in her extended right hand a laurel wreath with which to crown the dead; her left hand resting on a plow stock, and underneath, on a circular base, figures representing the heroism and sacrifices of the men and women of the south. The contract gave the artist a free hand.

Monument Is of Bronze.

The completed monument, including the base of plinth, and thirty-two life-sized figures, all in full relief, surrounding it, is entirely of bronze.

It stands upon a foundation of beautiful dark gray, highly polished Woodstock granite. The figure of the south, the plow stock and sickle and a verse from the Scriptures constitute the syntheses of the whole work. It means, primarily, peace.

The south (in the monument) rests her faith in the future on labor, while she holds a laurel wreath to crown the memory of her dead and wears, herself, a wreath of olive leaves, sacred to Minerva, the goddess, who in the group in front upholds the south when she is seeking wisdom and trying to sustain herself in the shield of the old Constitution, which she had set up for herself at Richmond.

The attitude and the general effect of the thirty-two figures around the relief, as grouped, illustrate in a striking manner the enthusiasm that animated the south when the tocsin of war was sounded, and in detail, these figures exhibit every phase of the heroism and sacrifices of the period; the soldiers who came to the front; the officer taking leave of his baby in the arms of his mother; the blacksmith, who has forged his own sword; the preacher and his wife, bidding good-bye to their schoolboy son; the bride putting the sword and ash away under her lover's waist, etc.

Inscriptions are: "To Our Dead Heroes By The United Daughters of the Confederacy." They have beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Victrix causa Diis placuit, sed victa Catoni.

"Not for fame, not for place, or for rank; not lured by ambition or headed by necessity; but in simple obedience to duty as they understood it, these men suffered, sacrificed all, dared all—and died."

The executive committee of the Arlington Confederate Monument Association has decided to place a large floral wreath on the stone which marks the graves of more than 1,000 unknown Union dead in the cemetery immediately after the unveiling ceremony.

Reception Tomorrow Night.

Tomorrow evening, at 9 o'clock, there will be a reception by the Arlington Confederate Monument Association of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Secretary of State in the Pan-American Union building, to meet Sir Moses Ezekiel, Mrs. Daisy McLaurin Stevens, Mrs. Cornelia Branch Stone, Mrs. Lizette

George Henderson, Mrs. Jennie Faulkner, Mrs. Alexander B. White, Commander-in-chief, Gardner of the G. A. R., Sir Moses Ezekiel, the sculptor, and Gen. Bennett Young, commander-in-chief of the Confederate Veterans, will be guests while in the city of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and will be entertained at the New Willard.

The committee on program for the unveiling ceremonies is: Mrs. Marion Butler, chairman; J. J. Darlington, Mrs. Magnus Thompson, Mrs. W. F. Wilcox, Mrs. Rust Smith, Senator Charles J. Padon, Mrs. Marcus Wright, Miss Mary Wilcox and Mrs. Wallace Streeter.

Arrangements Made to Handle Carriages at Arlington Exercises.

Arrangements for carriages and automobiles at the Confederate monument unveiling ceremonies in Arlington tomorrow were announced today by the War Department. They provide for approach through the Fort Myer post and along the new roadway from Highway bridge, as follows:

All automobiles and carriages arriving through the Fort Myer post will drive into the cemetery through the main Post Myer gate, and will return on the same way. The west or Confederate gate will be used exclusively for pedestrians and no carriages will be allowed to enter or leave through this gate.

All autos and carriages desiring to use the new approach roadway from Highway bridge will enter the cemetery as follows:

Autos will enter the first or Treasury gate and proceed direct to the Confederate section, where they will stand and proceed through the Spanish war section turn to parking space provided.

All carriages from east entrance will enter at McClellan gate on the left side of the left-hand road to Confederate section as directed by guard. These carriages when not loading will park in place designated.

All automobiles after being unloaded on McPherson avenue will proceed south, and after making the turn around Fort Myer will line up on the left side of the road, ready to take on passengers after the ceremonies.

All carriages will be parked west of McPherson avenue.

No carriages or automobiles will be allowed to remain standing on McPherson avenue, or on the drives from the Fort Myer gate to the Confederate section, and as soon as the vehicles are unloaded they must be directed to their proper parking spaces.

Alternate arrangements can be made, if so desired, for the carriages to drive on the outside of the west wall and park at the lower end of the drill ground, but under no consideration will these carriages be allowed to drive in.
